Chicago, May 9.—America's railroads started today on a concrete attempt to do their part in bringing prosperity back to the nation.

If the attempt fails, the country's most important railway executives predicted utter chaos in the transportation industry, with widespread wage cuts and other drastic operating economies affecting millions of workers.

The plan is contained in a resolution adopted by the Association of Railway Executives' Advisory Committee, composed of almost every important rail head in the United States. After deliberating for hours in a closed meeting at the Chicago Blackstone Hotel the transportation chiefs recommended:

That the various railroad rate agencies examine the existing freight tariff structures with a view to leveling "the inequalities" now prevalent.

The United Press learned that the railroads hope thereby to regain some of their lost revenue, and, as they did in 1921, when the country also was in a siege of depression, lead the way to general financial well being. The rate increases granted the railroads at that time aided in the start of a wave of buying which culminated in perhaps the greatest period of prosperity the world has ever known.

In the height of the 1920 depression the railroads were granted a 40 per cent blanket freight rate increase. Although the rates were stepped up actually only about 25 per cent, the resultant spending of millions of dollars for higher wages, more employees and better equipment was credited in many quarters with bringing the nation out of its war-end doldrums.

Then, as it was discussed by the 24 railroad heads attending the Chicago meeting, a "whittling" process set in, whereby one freight rate and then another was reduced until some 5,000 tariffs were lowered and today's rates approximate those in force in 1920.

The present lowered rates and the general depression thus are affecting seriously the railroads' credit, said the executives, who agreed that their problem, but simply, consists of increasing their income or decreasing their outgo.

The roads already have laid off all possible men, reduced dividends, and curtailed purchases of equipment. If the outgo is to be reduced further, the conferees decided they must cut wages drastically. With approximately 20 per cent of all the workers in the country dependent directly or indirectly on the railroads, a general salary cut would mean another segment added to the vicious depression circle.

The only other solution, continued the transportation chiefs, is the raising of income in the hope that railroad earnings may increase from the 3½ per cent on valuation reported in 1930 to something approximating the 5-3-4 per cent termed fair by law.

The executives tentatively adopted their resolution appealing for an equalization of the "hills and valleys" of freight rates in various parts of the nation. The more optimistic of the committee members hoped such an equalization would result in an average increase of about 10 per cent.

Such a rate advance would boost railroad income by about $400,000,000 a year, of which, some $120,000,000 would go to the wage earners.

"It would give a very potent push to prosperity, similar to that of the 1921 rate increase," said one of the leaders.

The railroad rate bodies, acting upon the resolution, are expected to complete their report in from three weeks to a month. The executives' association then will meet again to receive the report and the recommendations will be turned over to the interstate commerce committee for action.

While the commission has approved many freight rate reductions in the last decade, the railway heads said that it is not hostile to justifiable increases.

St. Paul, Minn., May 9.—Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific railroad, said today he does not approve of any general increase in freight rates.

Donnelly's statement was made on his return here after attending a meeting in Chicago of railroad executives. A study of rates was made at the meeting.

Hugo, Minn., May 9.—(U.P.)—In a typical wild west raid, six bandits, their faces masked with bandana handkerchiefs and armed with sawed off shotguns, today held up The Cabin, night club near here, and escaped with $1,000.

Patrons were interrupted in their dance and forced to line up along the wall by four of the men while their two confederates searched the night club habitués and employees.

After robbing them, two of the men covered the victims and forced them to lie on the dance floor. Then the bandits carted out six slot machines and the cash from the night club till.

The men warned the victims not to spread an alarm until they were safely away. The six sped away in an automobile.

Officials at Stillwater were notified and deputy sheriffs were organized to search the surrounding hill sides for traces of the men.

BOMBARDMENT

New York, May 9.—(U.P.)—Francis (Two Gun) Crowley, who was captured after a spectacular two-hour police bombardment, is eager to end his criminal career in Sing Sing's electric chair as speedily as possible.

The 20-year-old gunman today told authorities from his hospital cot where he is being treated for three minor gunshot wounds, that he is ready to admit his guilt in the murder of Patrolman Frederick Hirsch, and pay with his life as soon as possible under the law.

Crowley was in Nassau county hospital under heavy police guard today after being indicted for murder on the testimony of his 16-year-old sweetheart Helen Walsh, of Brooklyn, who was with him when Hirsch was riddled with bullets on Black Shirt Lane in North Merrick, L. I.

At the same time, his companion, Rudolph Durringer, a 220-pound truckman, was in jail here under indictment of a Bronx county grand jury for the slaying of Virginia Brannen, a Harlem dance hall mistress. Durringer told police he shot the girl to death because she spurned his advances during an automobile drinking party.

When Crowley learned that the Walsh girl, who penned notes of farewell for herself and her gangster admirer and reloaded revolvers, had turned against him, he told District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau county that he wanted to go to the chair as quickly as possible.

SULLEN GROUPS

ING PLACE400 NATIONAL GUARDSMEN ARE

COAL FIELDSBy FOSTER EATON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Evarts, Ky., May 9.—Sullen groups of unemployed miners loitered on the street corners and in their union meeting place here today, while 400 national guardsmen camped in the battle-scarred foothills of the southeastern Kentucky coal fields, both silently anticipating momentary renewal of disorders which already have claimed five lives.

Presence of the guardsmen, under command of Col. Daniel M. Carrell of the 138th field artillery, has had a quieting effect upon the restless miners, but there was a distinct air of brooding trouble caused by deep-rooted animosities.

Factions are aligned in two groups—business men and mine owners, who demand peace at all costs, and unemployed miners, who demand recognition of their union. The trouble grew out of efforts of the United Mine Workers of America to organize the mines here. Thus far, not an owner has granted the union recognition.

City officials, Police Chief A. C. Cusick and Assistant Chief A. L. Benson have openly aligned themselves on the side of the miners and publicly blamed the "mine guards" for the disorders.

Sheriff Johnson Henry Blair of Harlan; the county seat, while denying that he is affiliated or aligned with the mine owners, blames what he terms "reactionary" and "left wing" union workers for the troubles.

However, no one is quite certain who is responsible for the recent shooting which took the lives of three deputy sheriffs and a citizen when they were ambuscaded near the street battle which caused the death of another deputy sheriff, nor why the bitter animosities have arisen.

Many public officials deny the charges by Blair and Governor Flem D. Sampson that communists "were at the bottom of it all."

Mine owners blame the ill feelings on the depression and the adverse freight rates, which they insisted made any further concessions out of the question.

Rumors of new outbreaks and threats of violence, some alarming even to the citizens of Evarts, were numerous today, and formed the basis of the idlers' conversations. In the meantime, guardsmen paced up and down the streets alert and ready to put down any trouble.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—(U.P.)—Minneapolis' grand jury investigation into alleged vice protection by city police ended today with the indictment of three more policemen.

Those indicted, which raised the total to five for the six weeks' investigation, were E. J. Gustafson, suspended head of the morals squad; Sergeant Matt Neary and Patrolman William F. Mealey, both of the north side station.

Earlier this week the jurors indicted Joseph A. Lehmeyer, night captain of detectives, and Fred Schroeder, detective. Gustafson had been indicted before but the indictment was quashed because the court held it too general.

All the indictments are reported to charge wilful neglect of official duty. Gustafson's are said to involve a house of ill fame raided last week at the orders of the jury and failure to make arrests during a raid which the jurors ordered early in their investigation.

The two north side policemen were indicted for alleged failure to charge correctly liquor violators; it was said.

Before it concluded yesterday's session, the jurors named Police Captain Frank W. Brunskill, who formerly was chief of police, and Mayor William F. Kunze for questioning.

During its six weeks' duration, the jury called police and city officials and ordered numerous raids. More than 100 witnesses were heard. Bank accounts were inspected for evidence of alleged grafting by police executives and patrolmen. The indictments against the five policemen were the result.

LEAST 6 WEALTHY BANKERS
AND KIDNAPERS

Sterling, Ill., May 9.—(U.P.)—Warrants for six gangsters captured in an East St. Louis, Ill., raid were issued today by Justice of the Peace W. E. Stockler, pending the arrival of the outlaws with their police convoy from Springfield.

One warrant named Thomas O'Connor and five were "Joe Doe" warrants. All were sworn out by Serg. Oliver "Buck" Kempster and charge the men with the robbery of the Lincoln National and Trust Bank of Lincoln, Neb., of $25,000 in cash and $250,000 in securities on Sept. 17, 1930.

Officials of the Nebraska bank were expected in Sterling shortly before the arrival of the bandits.

Springfield, Ill., May 9.—(U.P.)—A desperate drive by Illinois police to stamp out kidnaping gangs which have terrorized the midwest for months centered today at the Springfield jail as more than 100 officers stood guard over six men captured in a spectacular raid in East St. Louis.

The six men, charged with robbing many banks, and suspected of kidnaping at least six wealthy bankers and gamblers for ransom, were accompanied into Springfield just before midnight by 50 state police, a dozen officers from St. Clair county, and a squad of picked men from the Chicago department.

The men were handcuffed together. Behind and in front of them rode officers with machine guns and shotguns ready. It has been feared an attempt would be made by gangsters to ambush the caravan. After their arrival the jail here was turned into a fortress with machine guns mounted all about and scores of officers standing guard.

It was announced the warlike parade would move on today to Sterling, Ill., to be joined there by Gov. Louis L. Emerson and Walter Moody, chief of the state highway police. It was planned then to take the men, said to be the "last of Fred Burke's gang," into Chicago.

Ten men were taken in the raid late yesterday on a flat on Broadway, the principal business street in East St. Louis. Three of them were released immediately and another, Dewey Sullivan, was turned over to city police.

The men held by the state were William McQuillion, Jack Britt, Howard Lee, Ed Hawkes, Tommy Hayes and Thomas Connor.

Acting under orders from Gov. Emerson that "the kidnapers must be stamped out," state police surrounded the block in which the men were gathered, apparently for some sort of conference. The block was cleared of all pedestrians and automobiles and roped off.

A hotel entrance across the street was blocked. Machine guns were mounted at four street corners and on several roofs.

Then the raiders swooped upon the flat and made the wholesale captures without the firing of a shot. Outside the "danger" line, a block away on either side, thousands of persons watched, awed at the unprecedented array of armed officials.

Police said Tommy Hayes was a leader of the band. They said he formerly belonged to the gang of Fred Burke, who recently was sentenced in Michigan to life imprisonment for killing a policeman. Hayes, they said, had organized former members of the Burke gang and the Shelton gang of southern Illinois into one desperate band to spread terror throughout several states by holdups and abductions.

Among the crimes which the men were suspected of were the kidnappings of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, Jr., of St. Louis, Fred Blumer of Monroe, Wis., and James Hackett of Chicago; and the killing of Mrs. Cora Garrison during an attempt to kidnap her husband, a wealthy Peoria, Ill., gambler. Britt and Connor once were arrested and tentatively identified as the slayers of Mrs. Garrison.

Tucson, Ariz., May 9.—(U.P.)—Will Rogers, film star and humorist, raised $3,000 at a benefit appearance here last night so that the University of Arizona polo team could make an eastern tour and participate in an inter-collegiate polo tournament at Long Island.

The team, having won 15 out of 18 games, wanted to compete for the national title but was informed that a plan to borrow or rent horses was a violation of the rules. The university did not have enough money to ship horses east.

Rogers, a polo player and ardent fan, heard of the university's problem and volunteered to come here and raise the money.

'TWO GUN' CROWLEY IS READY TO GO TO THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

EAGER TO END HIS CRIMINAL CAREER AS SPEEDILY AS POSSIBLE

CAPTURED AFTER A SPECTACU-LAR TWO-HOUR POLICE
BOMBARDMENT

New York, May 9.—(U.P.)—Francis (Two Gun) Crowley, who was captured after a spectacular two-hour police bombardment, is eager to end his criminal career in Sing Sing's electric chair as speedily as possible.

The 20-year-old gunman today told authorities from his hospital cot where he is being treated for three minor gunshot wounds, that he is ready to admit his guilt in the murder of Patrolman Frederick Hirsch, and pay with his life as soon as possible under the law.

Crowley was in Nassau county hospital under heavy police guard today after being indicted for murder on the testimony of his 16-year-old sweetheart Helen Walsh, of Brooklyn, who was with him when Hirsch was riddled with bullets on Black Shirt Lane in North Merrick, L. I.

At the same time, his companion, Rudolph Durringer, a 220-pound truckman, was in jail here under indictment of a Bronx county grand jury for the slaying of Virginia Brannen, a Harlem dance hall mistress. Durringer told police he shot the girl to death because she spurned his advances during an automobile drinking party.

When Crowley learned that the Walsh girl, who penned notes of farewell for herself and her gangster admirer and reloaded revolvers, had turned against him, he told District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau county that he wanted to go to the chair as quickly as possible.

SULLEN GROUPS OF MINERS IN THE EVARTS, KY. AREA

LOITER ON STREET CORNERS
AND IN THEIR UNION MEET-ING PLACE

400 NATIONAL GUARDSMEN ARE CAMPED IN FOOTHILLS OF COAL FIELDS

By FOSTER EATON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Evarts, Ky., May 9.—Sullen groups of unemployed miners loitered on the street corners and in their union meeting place here today, while 400 national guardsmen camped in the battle-scarred foothills of the southeastern Kentucky coal fields, both silently anticipating momentary renewal of disorders which already have claimed five lives.

Presence of the guardsmen, under command of Col. Daniel M. Carrell of the 138th field artillery, has had a quieting effect upon the restless miners, but there was a distinct air of brooding trouble caused by deep-rooted animosities.

Factions are aligned in two groups—business men and mine owners, who demand peace at all costs, and unemployed miners, who demand recognition of their union. The trouble grew out of efforts of the United Mine Workers of America to organize the mines here. Thus far, not an owner has granted the union recognition.

City officials, Police Chief Asa Cusick and Assistant Chief A. L. Benson have openly aligned themselves on the side of the miners and publicly blamed the "mine guards" for the disorders.

Sheriff Johnson Henry Blair of Harlan; the county seat, while denying that he is affiliated or aligned with the mine owners, blames what he terms "reactionary" and "left wing" union workers for the troubles.

However, no one is quite certain who is responsible for the recent shooting which took the lives of three deputy sheriffs and a citizen when they were ambushed near the street battle which caused the death of another deputy sheriff, nor why the bitter animosities have arisen.

Many public officials deny the charges by Blair and Governor Flem D. Sampson that communists "were at the bottom of it all."

Mine owners blame the ill feelings on the depression and the adverse freight rates, which they insisted made any further concessions out of the question.

Rumors of new outbreaks and threats of violence, some alarming even to the citizens of Evarts, were numerous today, and formed the basis of the idlers' conversations. In the meantime, guardsmen paced up and down the streets alert and ready to put down any trouble.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAND JURY VOTES MORE INDICTMENTS

3 MORE POLICEMEN NAMED AS INVESTIGATION IS ENDED

REPORTED CHARGES OF WILFUL NEGLECT OF DUTY ARE MADE

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—(U.P.)—Minneapolis' grand jury investigation into alleged vice protection by city police ended today with the indictment of three more policemen.

Those indicted, which raised the total to five for the six weeks' investigation, were E. J. Gustafson, suspended head of the morals squad; Sergeant Matt Neary and Patrolman William F. Mealey, both of the north side station.

Earlier this week the jurors indicted Joseph A. Lehmeyer, night captain of detectives, and Fred Schroeder, detective. Gustafson had been indicted before but the indictment was quashed because the court held it too general.

All the indictments are reported to charge wilful neglect of official duty. Gustafson's are said to involve a house of ill fame raided last week at the orders of the jury and failure to make arrests during a raid which the jurors ordered early in their investigation.

The two north side policemen were indicted for alleged failure to charge correctly liquor violators, it was said.

Before it concluded yesterday's session, the jurors called Police Captain Frank W. Brunsell, who formerly was chief of police, and Mayor William F. Kunze for questioning.

During its six weeks' duration, the jury called police and city officials and ordered numerous raids. More than 100 witnesses were heard. Bank accounts were inspected for evidence of alleged grafting by police executives and patrolmen. The indictments against the five policemen were the result.

6 MEN TAKEN IN A RAID IN EAST ST. LOUIS

CHARGED WITH ROBBING MANY BANKS IN THE NORTH-WEST

SUSPECTED OF KIDNAPING AT LEAST 6 WEALTHY BANKERS
AND KIDNAPERS

Sterling, Ill., May 9.—(U.P.)—Warrants for six gangsters captured in an East St. Louis, Ill., raid were issued today by Justice of the Peace W. E. Stockler, pending the arrival of the outlaws with their police convoy from Springfield.

One warrant named Thomas O'Connor and five were "Joe Doe" warrants. All were sworn out by Serg. Oliver "Buck" Kempster and charge the men with the robbery of the Lincoln National and Trust Bank of Lincoln, Neb., of $25,000 in cash and $2,500,000 in securities on Sept. 17, 1930.

Officials of the Nebraska bank were expected in Sterling shortly before the arrival of the bandits.

Springfield, Ill., May 9.—(U.P.)—A desperate drive by Illinois police to stamp out kidnaping gangs which have terrorized the midwest for months centered today at the Springfield jail as more than 100 officers stood guard over six men captured in a spectacular raid in East St. Louis.

The six men, charged with robbing many banks, and suspected of kidnaping at least six wealthy bankers and gamblers for ransom, were accompanied into Springfield just before midnight by 50 state police, a dozen officers from St. Clair county, and a squad of picked men from the Chicago department.

The men were handcuffed together. Behind and in front of them rode officers with machine guns and shotguns ready. It has been feared an attempt would be made by gangsters to ambush the caravan. After their arrival the jail here was turned into a fortress with machine guns mounted all about and scores of officers standing guard.

It was announced the warlike parade would move on today to Sterling, Ill., to be joined there by Gov. Louis L. Emerson and Walter Moody, chief of the state highway police. It was planned then to take the men, said to be the "last of Fred Burke's gang," into Chicago.

Ten men were taken in the raid late yesterday on a flat on Broadway, the principal business street in East St. Louis. Three of them were released immediately and another, Dewey Sullivan, was turned over to city police. The men held by the state were William McQuillion, Jack Britt, Howard Lee, Ed Hawks, Tommy Hayes and Thomas Connor.

Acting under orders from Gov. Emerson that "the kidnapers must be stamped out," state police surrounded the block in which the men were gathered, apparently for some sort of conference. The block was cleared of all pedestrians and automobiles and roped off.

A hotel entrance across the street was blocked. Machine guns were mounted at four street corners and on several roofs.

Then the raiders swooped upon the flat and made the wholesale captures without the firing of a shot. Outside the "danger" line, a block away on either side, thousands of persons watched, awed at the unprecedented array of armed officials.

Police said Tommy Hayes was a leader of the band. They said he formerly belonged to the gang of Fred Burke, who recently was sentenced in Michigan to life imprisonment for killing a policeman. Hayes, they said, had organized former members of the Burke gang and the Shelton gang of southern Illinois into one desperate band to spread terror throughout several states by holdups and abductions.

Among the crimes which the men were suspected of were the kidnappings of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, Jr., of St. Louis, Fred Blumer of Monroe, Wis., and James Hackett of Chicago; and the killing of Mrs. Cora Garrison during an attempt to kidnap her husband, a wealthy Peoria, Ill., gambler. Britt and Connor once were arrested and tentatively identified as the slayers of Mrs. Garrison.

WILL ROGERS HELPS POLO TEAM RAISE $3,000 FUNDS

Tucson, Ariz., May 9.—(U.P.)—Will Rogers, film star and humorist, raised $3,000 at a benefit appearance here last night so that the University of Arizona polo team could make an eastern tour and participate in an inter-collegiate polo tournament at Long Island.

The team, having won 15 out of 16 games, wanted to compete for the national title but was informed that a plan to borrow or rent horses was a violation of the rules. The university did not have enough money to ship horses east.

Rogers, a polo player and ardent fan, heard of the university's problem and volunteered to come here and raise the money.

MOTHER

Dearest Mother thou has left us, ere thy loss we deeply feel,
But it's God that has bereaved us. He can all our sorrows heal.

Mother thou art kind and lovely, gentle as a summer breeze,
Pleasant as the air of evening, as it floats among the trees.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber, peaceful in the grave so low,
Thou no more shall join our number, thou no more our songs can know.

Yet again we hope to meet thee when the days of life have fled,
Then in heaven we hope to greet thee where no farewell tears are shed.

It is reported that the heavy frost of the last few days has played havoc with the blueberry crop in this section. Currants and other small garden fruit which were located in a sheltered position so that they were well advanced before the cold snap, were also cut off as were the asparagus beds in and around Brainerd.

In the opinion of the city attorney there was nothing for the city council to do in the premises. The city clerk was requested to notify all owners of automobiles in the city, and stated he had done so. One had paid his license and the other intended to take the machine out of the state within the coming week.

Joel McCrea in Modern Film

"Kept Husbands," coming to the Palace theatre Sunday and Monday offers the modern solution to a problem that faces a large number of married couples who are drifting apart.

And it illustrates in a simple, practical way, how a rich woman and a poor man can compromise the difference in social positions and weld their lives into wedded happiness.

Young people who are contemplating marriage would do well to see this enlightening drama, and those who are already married can profit from its lesson.

The story is about a young woman, the daughter of a multi-millionaire steel man, who falls in love with, and later marries, one of her father's employees who earns $45 a week.

By keeping cool heads on their shoulders they work out their problem to satisfactory conclusion in a way that is replete with interest and entertainment.

The story is taken from life by Louis Sarecky and features Dorothy Mackall and Joel McCrea under the direction of Lolyd Bacon.

Other members of the cast include such stellar artists as Clara Kimball Young, Bryant Washburn, Mary Carr, Robert McWade, Ned Sparks, Florence Roberts, Freeman Wood and Lita Chevre.

SOLDIERS' PREFERENCE ACT HAS TEETH

St. Paul, May 9.—(AP)—Attention of state department heads was called today to the new and more stringent provisions in the soldiers' preference act revised by the legislature.

Over the signature of Edward J. Pearlove, chairman of the commission of administration and finance, state government officials were informed that hereafter former service men may be removed from office or jobs only after charges of incompetence or misconduct are proved against them, with the burden of proof resting on the persons making the allegations.

Enacted 30 years ago, the soldiers' preference act has been subject to many changes, most important of which came in 1925 when a clause in former Governor Theodore C. Johnson's reorganization act provided that department heads might employ and discharge at will without hearing any or all of their employees.

Pointing out that the 1931 law, known as chapter 347 of this session's laws, supercedes all previous enactments, Pearlove cited further that one provision affords discharged service men the right to appeal to the courts if the charges are found true in preliminary examination by a state board.

MOTHER

Dearest Mother thou has left us, ere thy loss we deeply feel,
But it's God that has bereaved us. He can all our sorrows heal.
Mother thou art kind and lovely,
gentle as a summer breeze,
Pleasant as the air of evening, as it floats among the trees.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber, peaceful in the grave so low.
Thou no more shall join our number,
thou no more our songs can know.
Yet again we hope to meet thee when the days of life have fled.
Then in heaven we hope to greet thee where no farewell tears are shed.

BRAINERD
25 Years Ago

May 9, 1906

It is reported that the heavy frost of the last few days has played havoc with the blueberry crop in this section. Currants and other small garden fruit which were located in a sheltered position so that they were well advanced before the cold snap, were also cut off as were the asparagus beds in and around Brainerd.

Mrs. Joe Scharfen of Northeast Brainerd left today for Pittsburg, Pa., to spend the summer. She was accompanied as far as St. Paul by Mrs. Joe Murphy.

The Odd Fellows have received a letter from Solomon Alberts, formerly of this city and a member of the Unity lodge, that he was in a hospital at Dawson, Alaska. His hands and feet were badly frozen so that all his toes and a part of each foot had to be amputated. Mr. Alberts left Brainerd for the Klondike at the time of the first gold craze.

The Eagles have asked the city council for permission to use portions of the streets for the purpose of a street fair for the space of one week. They promise that there shall be no fake gambling. The request was granted subject to the regulations of the chief of police and chief of the fire department.

At the city council meeting last evening the matter of licensing automobiles was taken up and City Attorney Mantor read the section of the new code requiring licenses and regulating the speed of machines both in municipalities and in the country, also providing for the placing of the license number on the rear of the machine. In the opinion of the city attorney there was nothing for the city council to do in the premises. The city clerk was requested to notify all owners of automobiles in the city, and stated he had done so. One had paid his license and the other intended to take the machine out of the state within the coming week.

AT METHODIST CHURCH

Mother's Day Observed at Morning Service, Pastor Speaks of "The Successful Mother"

Mother's Day at First Methodist church at the 11 a. m. service will be observed by a special sermon by the pastor on "The Successful Mother," and by special music consisting of a cornet solo by Malcolm Lammon and a selection by a quartet consisting of Mmes. At the evening service at 7:45 p. m. several of the old hymns will be sung and the pastor will give an illustrated lecture on "Pioneering With the Methodists in America."

Joel McCrea in Modern Film

"Kept Husbands," coming to the Palace theatre Sunday and Monday offers the modern solution to a problem that faces a large number of married couples who are drifting apart. And it illustrates in a simple, practical way, how a rich woman and a poor man can compromise the difference in social positions and weld their lives into wedded happiness.

Young people who are contemplating marriage would do well to see this enlightening drama, and those who are already married can profit from its lesson.

The story is about a young woman, the daughter of a multi-millionaire steel man, who falls in love with, and later marries, one of her father's employees who earns $45 a week.

By keeping cool heads on their shoulders they work out their problem to satisfactory conclusion in a way that is replete with interest and entertainment.

The story is taken from life by Louis Sarecky and features Dorothy Mackall and Joel McCrea under the direction of Loyd Bacon.

Other members of the cast include such stellar artists as Clara Kimball Young, Bryant Washburn, Mary Carr, Robert McWade, Ned Sparks, Florence Roberts, Freeman Wood and Lita Chevre.

BAPTIST SPECIAL SERVICES

Mother's Day Messages, Appropriate Music and Beautiful Decorations

Special messages, appropriate music and beautiful decorations will be the order of the "Mother's Day" services at the First Baptist church tomorrow, in honor of mother.

As a special mark of esteem, Rev. Edgar A. Valiant, the minister, is inviting all the mothers of the church, who are 75 years of age and over to sit with him on the platform, during the morning service, when he will speak on the subject, "A Tribute to Mother."

The music for this service will consist of two anthems, "The Songs My Mother Sang" and "His Grace is Sufficient," by the church choir and a request solo, "His Mother's Prayer," by White, by Will Anderson.

"Will Parents Revolt?" is the question to be discussed in connection with the question box at the evening service. The sermon subject will be "The Master's Charge to Sons and Daughters."

A large combined choir of women and girls voices will be one of the special features of the evening service, with the combined choir singing, "The Lights of Home," by Fanny J. Crosby and the girls choir singing "A Flower Within Our Hearts" by Meredith. A male trio consisting of Will Anderson, Charles Rice and Earl Peterson will render two numbers, "Till I See My Mother's Face," by Ackley and "Tell Mother I'll Be There." The congregational song service will be of great interest in that Mother's hymns will be used.

SOLDIERS' PREFERENCE ACT HAS TEETH

St. Paul, May 9.—(AP)—Attention of state department heads was called today to the new and more stringent provisions in the soldiers' preference act revised by the legislature.

Over the signature of Edward J. Pearlove, chairman of the commission of administration and finance, state government officials were informed that hereafter former service men may be removed from office or jobs only after charges of incompetence or misconduct are proved against them, with the burden of proof resting on the persons making the allegations.

Enacted 30 years ago, the soldiers' preference act has been subject to many changes, most important of which came in 1925 when a clause in former Governor Theodore Christianson's reorganization act provided that department heads might employ and discharge at will without hearing any or all of their employees.

Pointing out that the 1931 law, known as chapter 347 of this session's laws, supercedes all previous enactments, Pearlove cited further that one provision affords discharged service men the right to appeal to the courts if the charges are found true in preliminary examination by a state board.

Gifts of Lasting Character
You want your gift to be something permanent, of course . . . something that will remind the graduate of this event for many years to come.
So choose a gift of precious metal—a gift of lasting character. A fine watch, for example, in a case of natural yellow gold—a ring set with some precious stone.
There are many distinctive gifts—for both girls and boys—to choose from. And their prices are surprisingly moderate.
Stop in—you're always welcome just to look around!

How Much Should A Funeral Cost?

WE BELIEVE that the funeral should reflect accurately the standard of living of the deceased. To fall below this standard is not good taste. To spend more is mistaken sentimentality.
Whatever the needs of each particular case, the high standards of our service are always maintained.

For the Graduate Gifts of Lasting Character

You want your gift to be something permanent, of course . . . something that will remind the graduate of this event for many years to come.

So choose a gift of precious metal—a gift of lasting character. A fine watch, for example, in a case of natural yellow gold—a ring set with some precious stone.

There are many distinctive gifts—for both girls and boys—to choose from. And their prices are surprisingly moderate.

Stop in—you're always welcome just to look around!

Mother's Day

THE qualities of high ideals, sacrifice and courage are our heritages from our mothers. Thus it is no more than right that we should set aside one day in the year and call it "Mother's Day." It is the day, Sunday, May 10, when we stop and ponder and then pay homage, respect and devotion to motherhood.

Anna Jarvis, who first suggested Mother's Day, has well said: "The man who does not esteem some good woman as a mother is to be pitied, not only because he has missed life's crowning joy, the inspiration of a mother's love, but because his manhood has lost a gentleness and a sympathy and a reverence that ennobles in a way nothing else does. A man without mother love in his heart is next in isolation to a man without a country."

Every mother is a great mother. Greatness cannot help but be achieved by one who works hand in hand with our Creator to bring lives to the service of God and the world, and to rear them into lives of usefulness to the glory of His name.

Your mother wants you to come to church Sunday. Wear a flower to her memory and in her honor and join with the world honoring the greatest of the great—Mother.

What Made Rockne Plane Fall?

THEORIES are still being advanced as to what caused the passenger plane carrying Rockne to fall.

Another theory has been added to the growing list by a switching crew of Kansas City, Kansas, which reported an opinion that the tri-motored Fokker air liner brushed a grain elevator in leaving Kansas City, causing a structural weakness. The foreman believes he saw the wing of the airplane strike the fire escape on the Santa Fe elevator in the yards. Other members of the switching crew support his contention.

The men said the plane was flying so low they feared it would strike the elevator tanks, but it swerved upward. They said a dent was found in the fire escape covering which might have been caused by the tip of the wing. The men said that the widespread differences of opinion as to the cause of the crash caused them to hesitate to report what they believed they saw.

The idea in Brainerd is that the cold area traversed by the plane may have caused one or more of the motors to miss, backfire, and then go dead. This sudden loss of power may have caused the plane to swerve, and being at low level, the pilot was unable to right the plane. In any early spring storm one finds currents of cold air. The plane, flying below low clouds, was undoubtedly in a cold area. The two farmers on the fields near the accident said they heard the sounds of what seemed explosions. This may have been the backfiring of one or more motors. This whole idea is a theory and as such can take its place with the many other theories advanced.

Diversified Farming Pays

BANKS in rural Minnesota, where diversified farming has been developed to a greater extent than in other sections of the northwest, had a decrease of only 3 per cent in deposits last year, says the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis in an analysis of 1930 banking conditions in the ninth district.

"By contrast, deposits in North Dakota decreased 18 per cent; in South Dakota, 21 per cent; in Montana, 9 per cent; in western Wisconsin, 7 per cent, and in upper Michigan, 5 per cent," says the bank survey.

Crow Wing county is safely in the diversified farming class and on that account has seldom, if ever, had a total crop failure. In some years it was hay that grew luxuriantly, in others potatoes, and again dairying and poultry business have been basic pillars supporting farm work. Crow Wing county is not a one-crop country, like the cotton section. Mixed farming has proven its value in no uncertain fashion.

An Independent Governor

THE DISPATCH the other day reviewed Governor Rolland Hartley's record vetoing bills in Washington and it attracted comment. The St. Cloud Daily Times and Journal-Press states:

"Governor Rolland Hartley of Washington, member of the famous Hartley family of Brainerd, is exercising his independence as chief executive of this western state. He often gets into the limelight by his activities and views, is constantly threatened with defeat, but has been three times elected governor, indicating that he is suiting the rank and file.

"He vetoed nearly one-half the senate bills and one-fourth the house bills passed by the last legislative session, 73 vetoes in all. That's some independent record."

EVERY state should join in the movement to stamp out kidnapping if that crime has been manifested in its borders. The most drastic punishment should be meted out to kidnapers and no state should permit a gang to carry on its operations. The storm centers at present are in Illinois and Missouri. No one will ever know how many families have kept silent and have paid tribute to get back their loved ones.

NEW YORK policemen, firing at a stationary target, being Two Gun Crowley and his companions immured in their apartment, were able to hit Crowley twice after firing 1,000 shots in a two hours siege. At this range, looking at the affair from Brainerd, one wonders what kind of shots they have in the New York police department. They shoot better than that in the movies.

THE new state-wide cow testing plan, arranged for by the Minnesota State-wide Cow Testing association in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, is rapidly growing in favor among dairy farmers. All testing and record work is done at University Farm, the samples being sent in and the records returned by mail.

FRENCH politics is a science in which oratory still plays a large part. Here in the United States oratory takes secondary place to calm deliberation in committee rooms.

IN every election some candidate has the solid backing of all the righteous citizens who don't go to the polls, says the Detroit News.

THE average cost of a Reno divorce is figured at $350.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

The murder of Baroness von Wiese at Eagle's Nest stirred the town of Kingcliffe. Walter Vance, Assistant Chief-of-Police, is in charge of the investigation, aided by his fiancée, "Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter. A note, written by the Baroness, is found near the body. Bim recalls seeing the Baroness slip the butler a piece of paper, which he denies. Suspicion is cast on Mary Frost, whose husband, Ted, had flirted with the Baroness. Mary's shawl is found wrapped around the body. Mary claims she was unable to locate the shawl and left with Ted. It develops she returned later for the shawl. Complications arise when it is learned that Laura Allan had borrowed the shawl. Emily Hardy's maid heard the Baroness quarrel with her maid. Bim wonders about the wounds on the head and arm of the Baroness' maid. The jewels of the Baroness have been stolen. Laura says she saw Mary entering the garden wearing her shawl. Bim finds a stone from a man's ring on the Summer house path. Laura denies wearing the shawl. Bim learns from the gardener that Bunny Baird was entertaining a lady in his bungalow. Bob Trent, gassed war veteran, tells the police the Baroness insulted his wife. Mrs. Trent is fear-stricken. Baird refuses to reveal the name of the lady who visited him. Bim learns that Mary Frost returned home alone around midnight.

Her Chance

But it was her chance as well. Here was the story she had been waiting for—the one which would lift the Banner out of obscurity and put it on the map as the best written, best edited, most progressive newspaper outside the metropolis. She, herself, meant to do some editorials; also she would handle the account of the murder at Eagle's Nest all hereditarily set upon at the top of the column. "By China iris Martin," beneath headlines in husky block type. And then if old Tom couldn't or wouldn't see what it did for the Banner—well perhaps there would be an offer for her services from one of the New York newspapers. Not that she wished to leave Kingcliffe—not that it wouldn't break her heart to leave—but when a girl had decided on a career she must allow no considerations of sentiment to stand in the way.

CHAPTER XVIII.

AT the Station House Bim found Reynolds and old Jerry Fury going over the evidence Walter had gathered in his little note-book.

Walter would read his notes, explaining them carefully and at length to his chief and then Mr. Fury would nod sagely and wrinkle his eyes and shift the long, black cigar he always smoked unlighted. He sat with his chair tipped against the wall and his hands crossed on his stomach and Bim saw at once that he was completely at sea.

When Walter had closed the little book, Mr. Fury got up lumberingly, still nodding, and pulled his hat down over the front of his head.

"You've done good work, my boy," he said. "Har-rump. Well, let me know."

At Sea

"You wish me to handle the investigation, Chief?"

"For the present, my boy. For the present, Har-rump. Keep me in touch."

The Chief lumbered out of the Station House and Walter flashed a look of triumph at Bim before he and Reynolds exchanged grins. "Scared to death," Reynolds observed. "First time in twenty years a murderer's stared him in the face and he doesn't know what to do with it. This is your chance, son, even the commissioners won't stand for him after this."

Walter was looking at Bim; her face was scarlet but she kept her eyes down, knowing very well that Reynolds had guessed at the situation—that he understood how eager Walter had been for his chance and exactly why. She resented the fact that everyone seemed bent upon marrying her off to Walter.

Of course this was Walter's big opportunity; of course he would make the most of it—cover himself with glory—and she would help him if she could. So often they had talked together about such a possibility; so very well she comprehended what it meant to him.

Mother's Day

THE qualities of high ideals, sacrifice and courage are our heritages from our mothers. Thus it is no more than right that we should set aside one day in the year and call it "Mother's Day." It is the day, Sunday, May 10, when we stop and ponder and then pay homage, respect and devotion to motherhood.

Anna Jarvis, who first suggested Mother's Day, has well said: "The man who does not esteem some good woman as a mother is to be pitied, not only because he has missed life's crowning joy, the inspiration of a mother's love, but because his manhood has lost a gentleness and a sympathy and a reverence that ennobles in a way nothing else does. A man without mother love in his heart is next in isolation to a man without a country."

Every mother is a great mother. Greatness cannot help but be achieved by one who works hand in hand with our Creator to bring lives to the service of God and the world, and to rear them into lives of usefulness to the glory of His name.

Your mother wants you to come to church Sunday. Wear a flower to her memory and in her honor and join with the world honoring the greatest of the great—Mother.

What Made Rockne Plane Fall?

THEORIES are still being advanced as to what caused the passenger plane carrying Rockne to fall.

Another theory has been added to the growing list by a switching crew of Kansas City, Kansas, which reported an opinion that the tri-motored Fokker air liner brushed a grain elevator in leaving Kansas City, causing a structural weakness. The foreman believes he saw the wing of the airplane strike the fire escape on the Santa Fe elevator in the yards. Other members of the switching crew support his contention.

The men said the plane was flying so low they feared it would strike the elevator tanks, but it swerved upward. They said a dent was found in the fire escape covering which might have been caused by the tip of the wing. The men said that the widespread differences of opinion as to the cause of the crash caused them to hesitate to report what they believed they saw.

The idea in Brainerd is that the cold area traversed by the plane may have caused one or more of the motors to miss, backfire, and then go dead. This sudden loss of power may have caused the plane to swerve, and being at low level, the pilot was unable to right the plane. In any early spring storm one finds currents of cold air. The plane, flying below low clouds, was undoubtedly in a cold area. The two farmers on the fields near the accident said they heard the sounds of what seemed explosions. This may have been the backfiring of one or more motors. This whole idea is a theory and as such can take its place with the many other theories advanced.

Diversified Farming Pays

BANKS in rural Minnesota, where diversified farming has been developed to a greater extent than in other sections of the northwest, had a decrease of only 3 per cent in deposits last year, says the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis in an analysis of 1930 banking conditions in the ninth district.

"By contrast, deposits in North Dakota decreased 18 per cent; in South Dakota, 21 per cent; in Montana, 9 per cent; in western Wisconsin, 7 per cent, and in upper Michigan, 5 per cent," says the bank survey.

Crow Wing county is safely in the diversified farming class and on that account has seldom, if ever, had a total crop failure. In some years it was hay that grew luxuriantly, in others potatoes, and again dairying and poultry business have been basic pillars supporting farm work. Crow Wing county is not a one-crop country, like the cotton section. Mixed farming has proven its value in no uncertain fashion.

An Independent Governor

THE DISPATCH the other day reviewed Governor Rolland Hartley's record vetoing bills in Washington and it attracted comment. The St. Cloud Daily Times and Journal-Press states:

"Governor Rolland Hartley of Washington, member of the famous Hartley family of Brainerd, is exercising his independence as chief executive of this western state. He often gets into the limelight by his activities and views, is constantly threatened with defeat, but has been three times elected governor, indicating that he is suiting the rank and file.

"He vetoed nearly one-half the senate bills and one-fourth the house bills passed by the last legislative session, 73 vetoes in all. That's some independent record."

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

The murder of Baroness von Wiese at Eagle's Nest stirred the town of Kingcliffe. Walter Vance, Assistant Chief-of-Police, is in charge of the investigation, aided by his fiancée, "Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter. A note, written by the Baroness, is found near the body. Bim recalls seeing the Baroness slip the butler a piece of paper, which he denies. Suspicion is cast on Mary Frost, whose husband, Ted, had flirted with the Baroness. Mary's shawl is found wrapped around the body. Mary claims she was unable to locate the shawl and left with Ted. It develops she returned later for the shawl. Complications arise when it is learned that Laura Allan had borrowed the shawl. Emily Hardy's maid heard the Baroness quarrel with her maid. Bim wonders about the wounds on the head and arm of the Baroness's maid. The jewels of the Baroness have been stolen. Laura says she saw Mary entering the garden wearing her shawl. Bim finds a stone from a man's ring on the Summer house path. Laura denies wearing the shawl. Bim learns from the gardener that Bunny Baird was entertaining a lady in his bungalow. tion—that he understood how eager Walter had been for his chance and exactly why. She resented the fact that everyone seemed bent upon marrying her off to Walter. Of course this was Walter's big opportunity; of course he would make the most of it—cover himself with glory—and she would help him if she could. So often they had talked together about such a possibility; so very well she comprehended what it meant to him.

Her Chance

But it was her chance as well. Here was the story she had been waiting for—the one which would lift the Banner out of obscurity and put it on the map as the best written, best edited, most progressive newspaper outside the metropolis. She herself meant to do some editorials; also she would handle the account of the murder at Eagle's Nest all herself with her name at the top of the column. "By Chima Iris Martin," beneath headlines in natty block type. And then if old Tom couldn't or wouldn't see what it did for the Banner—well perhaps there would be an offer for her services from one of the New York newspapers. Not that she wished to leave Kingcliffe—not that it wouldn't break her heart to leave—but when a girl had decided on a career she must allow no considerations of sentiment to stand in the way.

All of this flashed through her mind in the little silence which followed Chief Fury's departure and so her voice was a bit husky as she told what she had learned from Charlie Perrone about Mary Frost.

CHAPTER XVIII.
T he Station House Bim found Reynolds and old Jer Fury going over the evidence Walter had gathered in his little note-book.

Walter would read his notes, explaining them carefully, and at length to his chief and then Mr. Fury would nod sagely and wrinkle his eyes and shift the long, black cigar he always smoked unlighted. He sat with his chair tipped against the wall and his hands crossed on his stomach and Bim saw at once that he was completely at sea.

When Walter had closed the little book, Mr. Fury got up lumberingly, still nodding, and pulled his hat down over the front of his head.

"You've done good work, my boy," he said. "Har-rump. Well, let me know."

At Sea

"You wish me to handle the investigation, Chief?"

"For the present, my boy. For the present, Har-rump. Keep me in touch."

The Chief lumbered out of the Station House and Walter flashed a look of triumph at Bim before he and Reynolds exchanged grins. "Scared to death," Reynolds observed. "First time in twenty years a murder's stared him in the face and he doesn't know what to do with it. This is your chance, son, even the commissioners won't stand for him after this."

Walter was looking at Bim; her face was scarlet but she kept her eyes down, knowing very well that Reynolds had guessed at the situation.

Walter said nothing, but Reynolds grunted, wagging his chin. "Figured we'd hear more of the Frost woman. She's all tied up in this like a sore thumb."

Bim protested at that. "Mary's the best woman in the world, Mr. Reynolds. She tried to cover up things about Ted, was all. He is not very nice to her, you see, and she does that all the time. She's as patient as she can be and meek—she's."

"Look out for the meek ones when they do step out," remarked the Sheriff.

"Oh, you're hard-boiled!" Bim was greatly offended. Of course, Mary Foot had not told the truth—that is, not all of the truth—but no one could blame her. Still it was foolish to try to hide the facts about Ted at a time like this.

"Supposing I see Mary and have a talk with her," she offered. "She might be more frank with me."

They considered the possibility. Reynolds objecting mildly. "These official questionings are particular things, Miss Bim. You have to have two sets of eyes; one to watch what you say so's not to tip what you're thinking and the other to watch what the other fellow's thinking so's not to bother too much with what he says."

"But this wouldn't be official. I'll just gossip with Mary a little and then I'll say I know she went home alone. Please let me, Mr. Reynolds. I'll be careful."

They gave her permission finally and she went away. But before she could return to Pine Hill there was her duty as a reporter to be taken care of. Accordingly she crossed Main street and slipped through the gate behind the Reformed Church and into the shabby old building on the little side street where the Banner was published.

There she found old Tom in his shirt sleeves, feet on his desk, smoking the smallest pipe in all the world and gazing with troubled eyes at the white-washed bricks on the wall behind the presses.

"I don't like it, Bimmy," was his greeting. "Crime in Kingcliffe—garden spot of the Hudson. Thirty years I've put the Banner to bed night after night with nothing worse in its columns than a brawl time the Harrison boys got frisky and tried to wreck the filling station over at Novel City. I dunno, Bimmy. Seems like we'd better play this down. Kind of case it along as an accident."

"Dad Martin, you'll do nothing of the sort! Here's a perfectly gorgeous murder in high society—it's pretty high society, anyway—and you sit there talking about making an accident of it! Of all the old sillies!"

"Ah, aow, Bimmy—"

"Don't you say another single word! Or yes—do say it—only on paper. 'Crime in Kingcliffe—serpents in the garden—' that'll do fine. A good long editorial, double column measure. Give it to 'em. Dad. And now I'll do my own stuff."

He regarded her apprehensively but said no more. For a long time the only sounds in the Banner office were the scratch of old Tom's pencil and the click of Bim's typewriter, and finally the typewriter was left running on its own when old Tom, muttering something about seeing a man, snatched up his hat and made off down the street.

Subtle Motive

Bim began her report of what had happened at Eagle's Nest with an account of the missing jewels. She meant to make it a story of a robbery which had ended in murder. But as words clicked off beneath her fingers and sheets of copy began to pile on the desk, she realized that she was writing a tale of mystery instead—a tale of a mysterious murder in which robbery was merely an incident.

Despite the fact that everybody connected with the affair had accepted the robbery motive, tacitly at least, she now knew that all the while there had lurked in her subconsciousness the certainty that the Baroness von Wiese had not been slain because of her jewels. There had been another motive for the killing; something much more subtle, much more intriguing to a girl reporter.

Bim left off writing and sat there scowling at her typewriter, trying to figure it out. And all at once she was aware that a pair of laughing dark eyes were surveying her as a tall, remarkably attractive, young man leaned across the desk.

Official averages, released today and including games of Thursday, May 7, show Ruth topping the American League with a mark of .452, and Roettger pacing the National at .400.

Ruth has been handicapped afield and on the bases by an injured leg, but the injury has had little effect on his hitting. During the past week

BUCKY LAWLESS BESTS THOMPSON OF CALIFORNIA

IS NEMESIS OF WELTERWEIGHT TITLE HOLDERS

10 ROUND NON-TITLE BOUT HELD AT CHICAGO LAST NIGHT

CROWD OF 10,373 PAYS $21,980 TO SEE THE FIGHT CARD

Chicago, May 9.—(UP)—Bucky Lawless of Syracuse, N. Y., nemesis of welterweight champions, today boasted another victory over the title holder of the 147-pound division.

By defeating Jack Thompson of California, welterweight ruler, in a 10-round non-title bout here last night, Lawless annexed his fourth decision over a reigning welterweight champion. Lawless previously had defeated Thompson, Joe Dundee and Tommy Freeman, all when they held the championship.

Weighing 148 pounds, one pound over the class limit, Lawless had no chance to win the title. Thompson scale 147. A crowd of 10,373 paid $21,980 to see the program which included three rounds of exhibition boxing by Max Schmeling of Germany, heavyweight champion.

Thompson, who won the title last year from Jackie Fields, lost it to Tommy Freeman and then won it back last month, outpointed Lawless in the early rounds, but tired toward the end. Lawless started a concerted rally in the sixth round and kept it up to the finish. Several times the Syracuse Irishman rocked Thompson with his rights to the head. Lawless' left to the face also bothered Thompson during the final round.

New York, May 9.—Boxing's notably field followers had a new idol today in Tony Herrera, olive-skinned Mexican lightweight. Herrera made his debut in fast company at Madison Square Garden last night and lost a thrilling ten-round bout to Jack Kid Berg, English whirlwind, but won the plaudits of the 8,264 spectators who paid $23,644.39 to witness the fight.

Berg, always extremely popular in New York, won the bout by a margin decisive enough to give him the votes of both judges and the referee, but the fans were intrigued by Herrera's game battle and booed the verdict.

Hollywood, May 9.—Bobby Pacho, 134, and Goldie Hess, 134, drew (10); Paul Delaney and Nick Kekorian drew (4); Willie Pelligrini, 124, defeated Ray Cervantes, 124 (4), after earlier bout between the two was halted when Cervantes gained a technical knockout in the first round. The two were ordered to re-fight immediately. Harry Wallinder defeated Young Ralph Vasquez, decision (4); Lloyd Smith decisioned Artie McCann (4); Jimmy Berg defeated Rudy Guyton, technical knockout (3).

San Francisco, May 9.—Raymond Dozier, 143, San Francisco, decision over Meyer Grace, 146, Chicago (10).

Eau Claire, Wis., May 9.—Prince Saunders, 135, Chicago, knocked out Bud Murphy, 135, Moorhead, Minn. (6).

Striking out the first nine men that faced him, "Benny" Foster, J. C. Penney, twirling ace, led his mates to an easy 15-1 victory over the previously undefeated All Stars in a city league kitchball game last night at the N. P. ball park.

Last year's city league champs had a comparatively easy time defending their unbeaten record of this year. They connected solidly with the ball throughout the game, the brother battery combination of Tribur and Tribur for the All Stars apparently offering them but little difficulty.

The game between Penney's and the Bye Clothiers Monday night will probably draw a good crowd owing to the fact that Penney's are still undefeated this year while last year's runners-up have not broken into the win column yet although regarded as a strong contender this year.

The complete schedule for the rest of the season will be announced soon.

BOWLING AT VAN'S CLOSES NEXT WEEK

The schedule for the final week of bowling at Van's alleys starting Monday was announced today as follows by C. C. Van Eesen:

Monday—Peterson Clothing vs. Bye Clothing; E. M. B. A. vs. Alderman-Maghan.

Tuesday—Lively Auto vs. Schmitz; Study Club vs. All Stars.

Wednesday—Elka vs. Moose; Brainos vs. Monument Works.

Thursday, Ladies' League—Anderson Dry Cleaners vs. Brainerd Laundry; Sedlock's vs. Northern States Power.

Major Event, in Life of a Minor

Judge Landis, czar of baseball, pictured as the distinguished guest at the dedication of Stuart Stadium, at Beaumont, Texas, for the Beaumont Exporters of the Texas League, one of the most important of the minor circuits. The commissioner of baseballdom carries a native bouquet and received life membership in the organization.

WHERE'S THE WAR?

Ever since the season started reports have been current that there is friction between Manager Hornsby (left) and Hack Wilson, but this picture taken Tuesday in Chicago ought to prove conclusively that there isn't. Just to demonstrate how they feel toward each other the Cub leader and his home run hitter posed with broad grins and a sincere handshake.

Several outstanding veterans are among the regular members of the University of Minnesota baseball team and with a number of sophomores performing capably the squad gives a promise of making a creditable showing this year.

No. 1. Coach Frank McCormick, who is serving his first season directing the University of Minnesota baseball team. McCormick was a star athlete at the University of South Dakota in this undergraduate days, performing in football, basketball and baseball.

No. 2. Milford Rigg, veteran catcher for the Minnesota nine. Rigg was used as a relief catcher most of last season but has caught every game for the Gophers this year.

No. 3. Walfrid Mattson is Minnesota's best right-handed pitcher. Last year Mattson turned in some fine pitching exhibitions and is expected to come through with a majority of winning performances again this season.

No. 4. Ed Burke is playing his first season as a regular for the Gophers. As a Freshman last season he aspired to become a pitcher but Coach McCormick converted him into a first baseman where he has been showing up well.

No. 5. Bill Adams is playing third base for Minnesota. Adams is a peppy little player who has been fielding and hitting in a capable manner this year.

No. 6. At shortstop for Minnesota is the veteran Dave Beauchaine. He was rated high among Big Ten shortstops last season and this year is showing even greater improvement.

Myril and Earl

By HARDIN BURNLEY

MOST interesting perhaps among the New York Yankees' 1931 recruits is Myril Hoag, 21-year-old outfielder, purchased from the Sacramento Club at a reputed $75,000 price. Hoag is one of the boys who set 'em frantic in training games by his terrific hitting, especially against left-handers. But on his first appearance in the big show, Southpaw Rube Walberg, of the Athletics, fanned Hoag three times and, for the time being, "Dusty" Cooke has been given the regular left field assignment.

However, Hoag will be given a thorough trial, because Manager Joe McCarthy and others still think Myril has the making of "another Combs." He's young, ambitious, fleet and, when experienced a bit more in major league outfield technique, Hoag may become the ideal ball-hawk.

Of course, the Sacramento kid's future rests essentially on his ability to solve stellar pitching. Even on the citrus circuit, where Hoag hit so well, his batting faults were obvious to experts. His knees creaked on the swing, etc. Good coaching should correct such defects rather promptly.

Because of his speed and agility, Hoag was given some workouts as an infielder, but, for the present, the Yanks are well fortified in these positions, and so Myril will continue as a utility outfielder, unless McCarthy decides to farm him out for more seasoning. That is unlikely now, since Babe Ruth twisted his hip in one of his characteristic base-jarving plays at Boston recently and Hoag was given a chance to sub. Filling the Bam's shoes is far from a comfortable job, but it is a chance for Myril.

As to Combs he is again an ideal outfielder, radiating class even when in the same picket line as the colossal Ruth. He's happy to be working again for Joe McCarthy, who discovered him when with Louisville a few seasons ago. Earl is hitting consistently and timely. He's a model for Myril, who some day may prove "another Combs."

Hoag incidentally is the male Cinderella of the majors, wearing but 5½ sized shoes! "He lucky that Ruth, Gehrig or Dickey will never have to fill Myril's footwear! Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

By HARDIN BURNLEY

MOST interesting perhaps among the New York Yankees' 1931 recruits is Myril Hoag, 21-year-old outfielder, purchased from the Sacramento Club at a reputed $75,000 price. Hoag is one of the boys who set 'em frantic in training games by his terrific hitting, especially against left-handers. But on his first appearance in the big show, Southpaw Rube Walberg, of the Athletics, fanned Hoag three times and, for the time being, "Dusty" Cooke has been given the regular left field assignment.

However, Hoag will be given a thorough trial, because Manager Joe McCarthy and others still think Myril has the making of "another Combs." He's young, ambitious, fleet and, when experienced a bit more in major league outfield, radiating class even when in the same picket line as the colossal Ruth. He's happy to be working again for Joe McCarthy, who discovered him when with Louisville a few seasons ago. Earl is hitting consistently and timely. He's a model for Myril, who some day may prove "another Combs."

Hoag incidentally is the male Cinderella of the majors, wearing but 5½ sized shoes! "Tis lucky that Ruth, Gehrig or Dickey will never have to fill Myril's footwear!

Versatility in Dancing and Music Displayed at Whittier P. T. A.
Program

Braierd was pleasantly surprised Friday evening to find that the piano and dancing recital at the Washington high school auditorium under auspices of the Whittier P. T. A., given by Elizabeth Johnstone and Anita Hartzberg savored decidedly of professionalism. Especial credit should be given to these teachers for carrying out a program so successfully.

Jeanne Broach announced in a brief prologue that both will continue their classes in Braierd, Miss Hartzberg returning in the fall.

Mrs. C. L. Burnett assisted Miss Johnstone with the dramatic part and wrote many of the verses. She is deserving of a great deal of credit for her work.

The program opened with the Sailors' chorus with Richard Anderson as spokesman. These sailors told many thrilling tales through music and the audience was later introduced to Captain Kidd and the Pirate Ships. The phrasing and expression of these children was especially noteworthy. The audience was next taken to a toyshop and heard the Chinese, Arabian and Indian dolls playing native melodies. These dolls were rescued from the toy shop fire by Marion Scott. Five year old Marion Moulster showed unusual strength and technique in her circus pieces. She also played for the Waltz Clog Ensemble.

A very charming "Garden of Flowers" was presented by the beginners with Geraldine Erickson gardener and Jeanne Peterson as fairy queen of the flowers. Individuality was shown in "Darkie Land" presented by Miss Johnstone's advanced class with versatile Winifred Loom as the lead in this distinctive offering. Each one of the group played darkie melodies.

An especially difficult number, "The Crap Shooters," was very well played by Jean Cibazar. Evelyn and Winifred Loom concluded the group with a blues harmony number.

The dance program was opened very capably with a waltz by Elaine Weisz followed by "Air de Ballet" led by Beth Pulkabek, which was rhythmic and colorful. One of the most charming and pleasing numbers on the program was the "Bavarian Souvenir" featuring Betty Mathis and Nanny Bobs Hitch and Marion Moulster. Donna Tyholm executed a particularly lovely and intricate dance. Geraldine Boggans was in an effective and glittering costume did equally as well. Beth Pulkabek was most entertaining as a Hungarian dancer. These same three girls performed an acrobatic dance which was the most outstanding divertissement of the evening. Puck, by Gries, was a sprightly, delightfully different dance with Winifred Loom displaying unusual agility and grace.

Bernice Steinfeldt, in a Spanish solo, very characteristically introduced the Spanish ensemble which was one of the brightest and gayest numbers on the dance program. Following this we enjoyed a Tarantelle. Betty Jane Paine leading Ragamuffin Romeo was followed by the "waltz" which completed a most satisfactory program.

Both classes participated in the grand finale "Sleepy Town Express." Mrs. Betty Witham deserves especial mention for her excellent accompanying.

Warrants Charge

Subornation of Perjury

Minneapolis, May 9—(U.P.)—Warrants charging subornation of perjury were returned today against Herrell Hutchinson, foreman, and Dan Harding, special investigator, of the special county grand jury investigating vice conditions in Minneapolis.

The complaint was signed by Harold Brevik, secretary to Mayor W. F. Kunze, and charges that Hutchinson and Harding attempted to "frame Brevik." An affidavit signed by Frank Caviness, an inmate of the city workhouse, was the basis for the warrants. Caviness charged that Hutchinson and Harding visited the workhouse May 1 and attempted to persuade Frank Corneaby, another inmate, to give testimony, "either true or false, under which Brevik could be indicted."

Caviness said that he occupied a cell next to Corneaby and heard the prisoner refuse to testify as Hutchinson and Harding requested.

The warrants were given to police officers, who were ordered to arrest Hutchinson and Harding.

COP CHARGES ASSAULT AGAINST HIM AT DANCE

Frank Brandt Said He Was Struck by Ernest Anderson Who Was "Fighting Drunk"

TO BRING STATE CHARGE

Assistance Required Before Man Could be Handcuffed; One of Helpers Kicked

Frank Brandt, special patrolman, policing the dance at the Crystal Ballroom, was the victim of an attack in the hall of the auditorium last night he said today as he signed a complaint against his alleged aggressor, Ernest Anderson, South Fifth street, whom he hauled off to jail after a scuffle.

So serious was the offense that city authorities called in County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan to place a state charge against Anderson.

Sullivan said a charge of assaulting an officer in the performance of his duties would be brought against Anderson. The prisoner will be arraigned Monday morning in municipal court.

Officer Brandt told his story of the assault as follows:

"A man attending the dance came up to me and told me that there was a fellow inside the auditorium who was looking for trouble. I walked into the auditorium, saw that the man was intoxicated and told him to leave. I took him into the hall and there he accosted me calling me vile names and challenging me to arrest him. As I started to take him along he swung at me, hitting me in the face. I did not have a club with me or I would have used it. I grabbed him around the neck and threw him to the floor. Then he kicked me in the side and later kicked me in the leg. I called for Ernest Fox to help me put the handcuffs on him. As Fox came near Anderson kicked him in the groin. With assistance the handcuffs were placed on Anderson and I took him off to the city jail."

Brandt stated that Anderson was fighting drunk and that he was in the auditorium without a dance tag. The alleged attack took place at 12:30 a. m., causing confusion among the dancers.

Considerable blood was spilled in the fray and his clothes were nearly torn from his back, the officer said.

Brandt said that while he did not have an officers uniform on, Anderson knew that he was a police officer. His badge was pinned on his vest.

A Mother's Day Message to Fathers

from 16,000 motherless babies

"We are the babies born this year who will never know our mothers. They died because we came."

"Help the babies who are coming, to keep their mothers with them."

Wouldn't every motherless baby make this plea to all fathers, if he could?

Each year 16,000 mothers die in childbirth. Many could be saved.

The right care before the baby comes can save the mother in many cases. Among 4,726 mothers cared for by the Maternity Center Association, the death rate was reduced two-thirds!

Seek medical advice early. Write your Department of Health or the Maternity Center Association for information and literature.

When the easiest way is the best way . . .

There are no two ways about it! Certainly the easiest way to get the most for every dollar you spend is to buy products that you know about through the advertisements in your daily paper. You don't have to go out and look for buying opportunities. The advertisements bring them to you. And all you need do is consider the facts, compare values and decide on the soap or the sedan that best fits your judgment and your pocketbook.

Certainly the best way of making your money go farthest is to buy merchandise of proved value. Advertised merchandise. Merchandise that is bought and used by many people. Merchandise that must be superlatively good enough for its maker to keep calling it to the attention of people day after day and year after year.

This is the service—of convenience and profit—that the advertisements offer you every day. It will pay you to read them regularly and take advantage of everything they can do for you.

COP CHARGES ASSAULT AGAINST HIM AT DANCE

Frank Brandt Said He Was Struck by Ernest Anderson Who Was "Fighting Drunk"

TO BRING STATE CHARGE

Assistance Required Before Man Could be Handcuffed; One of Helpers Kicked

Frank Brandt, special patrolman, policing the dance at the Crystal Ballroom, was the victim of an attack in the hall of the auditorium last night he said today as he signed a complaint against his alleged aggressor, Ernest Anderson, South Fifth street, whom he hauled off to jail after a scuffle.

So serious was the offense that city authorities called in County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan to place a state charge against Anderson.

Sullivan said a charge of assaulting an officer in the performance of his duties would be brought against Anderson. The prisoner will be arraigned Monday morning in municipal court.

Officer Brandt told his story of the assault as follows:

"A man attending the dance came up to me and told me that there was a fellow inside the auditorium who was looking for trouble. I walked into the auditorium, saw that the man was intoxicated and told him to leave. I took him into the hall and there he accosted me calling me vile names and challenging me to arrest him. As I started to take him along he swung at me, hitting me in the face. I did not have a club with me or I would have used it. I grabbed him around the neck and threw him to the floor. Then he kicked me in the side and later kicked me in the leg. I called for Ernest Fox to help me put the handcuffs on him. As Fox came near Anderson kicked him in the groin. With assistance the handcuffs were placed on Anderson and I took him off to the city jail."

Brandt stated that Anderson was fighting drunk and that he was in the auditorium without a dance tag. The alleged attack took place at 12:30 a. m., causing confusion among the dancers.

Considerable blood was spilled in the fray and his clothes were nearly torn from his back, the officer said.

Brandt said that while he did not have an officers uniform on, Anderson knew that he was a police officer. His badge was pinned on his vest.

3 CHARGED WITH HIDING BANDITS

Watkins Brothers Plead Not Guilty to Sheltering Hewitt Bank Robbers

Three Watkins brothers were charged with being accessories after the fact in connection with the robbery of the First State Bank of Hewitt today, according to a United Press dispatch from Long Prairie.

The three—Claude, Fay and Valte Watkins—were said to have confessed to sheltering the pair after they escaped with $2,500 from the bank. Police said the two were Hillary Henderson and Clarence Campbell, both of whom are wanted on warrants charging them with bank robbery.

The Watkins pleaded not guilty when arraigned and were ordered held for the Todd county district court which convenes in October.

FILM DESTROYED, 'SKIPPY' DELAYED

A small blaze in a film exchange in Minneapolis today burned among other films the production of "Skippy" scheduled to have been shown at the Paramount theatre here Sunday and Monday, Harry Greenberg, local manager, reported.

In this respect Mr. Greenberg said that "Skippy" will be shown at a later date. The picture substituted is a mystery entitled "The Cat Creeps."

Winners of the Dispatch "Skippy" contest will be guests at the theatre Monday and will also be admitted to see "Skippy" when it is shown.

FOREMAN HONOR RETIRED N. P. MAN

Mr. and Mrs. George Fox Guests of Honor at Banquet in Masonic Hall

The esteem which George Fox, retired assistant general foreman of the machine shops in the Northern Pacific railway shops here was held during his 36 years of service was further demonstrated last evening when 70 N. P. foremen and workmen tendered him and Mrs. Fox a banquet in the Masonic hall. The meal was served by the Eastern Star.

Because Mr. Fox is an ardent hunter and fisherman, his friends presented him as a token of their admiration, a pair of rubber boots and a hunting coat. Mrs. Fox received a bouquet of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox will leave the early part of June on a six weeks visit of the west coast. They will be guests of their son, Wallace at San Francisco, Calif. They will continue to make their residence at 420 D street N. E.
